Ohio Art League Special Exhibition at MadLab Theatre and Gallery

'Blue Molly' by Austin Burnside

October 17, 2014 – COLUMBUS, OHIO – Experience a simplistic understanding of material and gravity during artist Austin Burnsides' very special exhibition, 'Blue Molly,' running October 16 – November 1 at MadLab Theatre. Austin stated, "My motivations for these works deals with labor and ingenuity. I want these pieces to talk about the livelihood for blue-collar men and women by using their trades to describe their personality and who they are beyond face value. I engineer these sculptures and paintings to become fun, intriguing, or unique to describe more of a complex situation."

View this exhibition October 16 – November 1 during the MadLab theatre production, "Memory Fragments" at 227 North 3rd Street in Columbus. There is no admission to view the artwork. Hours are: October 17, 18, 24, 25, 31, and November 1 from 7:00–8:00pm and by appointment.

An opening reception with light refreshments will be held Friday, October 17 from 5:00–7:00pm at MadLab Theatre and Gallery.

About the Artist: Austin Burnside

Austin Burnside is a student at Columbus College of Art and Design studying toward his BFA in Fine Arts. Predominantly, Austin is a sculptural artist who manipulates materials in a precarious or a strangely kinetic fashion using mostly blue-collar building materials. A few materials frequently found in his works are, concrete, sheet metal, motors, and tar/construction adhesives. Austin combines these materials with his knowledge of building to bring a new light in an unconventional and mostly quirky manner.

"As a young artist it is hard to get show opportunities outside of CCAD corporal limits," Austin said. "I expressed my concerns with my professors and one of them recommended me to Ohio Art League. I became a member and had an exponential rate of show opportunities. This organization has helped get my artwork out into the greater Columbus area and I am grateful for it."
